JUST CUT YOUR OWN OATS.

There is possibly nothing so abundantly given in this busy world as advice. A man can get advice at any time on any subject and without cost or trouble. If he starts out to plant a crop he will find a hundred, yea a thousand, people who are waiting to advise him how to proceed all along the line, from the turning of the soil, the dropping of the seed, the cultivation, clean to the gathering of the harvest. If a man's horse goes lame or gets sick he will find in every neighborhood and in every passing stranger a veterinarian with the needed remedy. If a man starts to build a house he can find an unlimited supply of advice as to how he shall build, and so on through all the range of human endeavors. This is a gracious world in this respect; a man need not remain in ignorance if he has the wisdom or capacity to take in and make valuable the advice extended. And this is a good virtue in humanity; it shows a desire to be helpful and neighborly, and to take interest in what is going on about us. And if this neighborly interest ceased here conditions would be ideal. But there is another tendency in humanity that is not so commendable or so charitable.

table, and that is the disposition to criticize and find fault; to scandalize the acts of others, without knowing the truth of what is repeated or given voice to. And the worst feature of the crime is that it does not seem to matter much what kind of life a man may live, what efforts he may make or along what line, there are always those to decry him. Gossip is a national, a world-wide crime, and the person who talks scandal is as much guilty of crime as the man who takes life.

There seems to be an understood license in the country that when a man offers for public office, especially, he becomes fit prey for the human vultures, and his character and reputation are made a plaything to be tossed about and rolled in the mire at will. And this tendency keeps many good people from offering for the public service.

There is only one thing to do. And that is for every man to "cut his own oats;" to pursue the even tenor of his way; do his full duty as a man; be sure in his own heart that his life is right, and deny those who would destroy him by offering a clean and well ordered life.

AS TO LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The Herald takes the position that if the majority of the people of a community decide that a certain course of action is best for the community they have a right to say to the minority that you must not do to the contrary. And we believe all local government brethren agree with us to this extent. And if we agree that a community has this right, we must also agree that a state has the same right. If a clean majority of the people of Texas decide that a certain law is good for the state, that majority has a perfect right to insist that such a law be passed and its penalty be invoked against those who violate it. Local self-government is very fine in theory, but put into actual usage anarchy would be only a step removed. If one community can claim the right to rebel against a state law, then it follows as easy that any part of a community can rebel against a community and defy its local laws.

COME ON, TYLER.

Palestine followed Tyler with a creamery.—Tyler Daily Post.

All right, Palestine followed Tyler with a creamery.

And Palestine led Tyler in the matter of street paving, and is leading all East Texas towns along this line.

And Palestine led Tyler with an up-to-date gas plant, and has one of the best gas plants in the south.

And Palestine led Tyler in the matter of commission city government, and is still leading.

And Palestine led Tyler in the grading of residence streets, and is going to lead all East Texas towns in improving these streets.

And Palestine led Tyler in the matter of sidewalk building.

And Palestine led Tyler in the matter of street lighting in the residence district, being the best lighted town in East Texas.

Come on, Tyler.

Explorer Peary has canceled his lecture dates in the south. Congress has invited Peary to make a little talk along with certain proofs that need attention first.

The first issues of the Tyler Daily Post have reached the Herald exchange table. The Post is a neat paper and starts out with a good advertising business. L. M. Green, a pioneer newspaper man of East Texas, is editing the new paper. The Herald wishes for the new publication all the success it may merit. The Post enlists for Cone Johnson for governor.

With all due deference to the ex-cruciating loveliness of the new spring millinery, the Herald is constrained to remark that Mrs. Mackay of New York is talking through her hat when she declares that the women will declare for "no vote then no marriage." We cannot speak for New York and Boston, but down here in Texas where the women are the sweetest things in the world and the men the most gallant, it doesn't matter a fig with our angels whether they can vote or not, if they see a man whom they love and want they are going to marry him.

You may talk about your new fangled songs, where the high soprano tra-la-las in a high key, to be interrupted by the tenor who chimes in with the la-da-da, but when it comes to songs that move the cord strings of the human heart and inspire the sentiments, nothing compares with those grand old hymns our fathers and mothers sang in the long ago, and that live today as part of the musical history and life of the people.

The insurgents and democrats had Uncle Joe Cannon perilously near the end of his limb yesterday, and it looks as though the old man is going to be shaken off with a dull thud yet. If he gets some of the same medicine he has been dishing out for these many years he should not complain. The press dispatches did not tell us if the speakership cigar went out during the melee, but if it didn't your Uncle Joe is a good smoker; that's all.

If you favor statewide prohibition and want to see Texas rid of the saloon you should vote for Cone Johnson. He is the strength of the movement, and every vote scattered on other candidates weakens the cause to that extent. The anti-want Col-

Is Your Home YOURS ?

Some folks worry along through life paying rent on a stuffy old shack—spending their money as fast as they make it. They are non-winners.

It's a sad plight to sit gray haired on the sands of Time with but one thing left—the wish that you had bought a home of your own instead of wasting your hard earned money on rent.

Our simple plan makes it possible for You to build a home of your own and pay for it in monthly installments, no larger than you now pay for rent. Stop paying rent. Write for our plan.

A WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

By the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association.
March 23rd the Day.

I suppose you have all noticed the grand old walk that has recently been laid around to the side entrance of the Y. M. C. A. Of course you will all agree it is an improvement, as that is the aim of the Ladies' Auxiliary. We want to improve and beautify our Y. M. C. A. so that it will be attractive to our boys—for it is a well known fact that but few of the busiest and hardest workers in the auxiliary have boys; so we are working for your boys. Now, we want more members and more workers, so we have decided to have our ladies call upon you Wednesday, March 23, and ask you to join us. The membership costs you but a dollar a year, and that includes the privilege of the library, which we consider very good, as we have but recently added a number of the latest books. If, when our ladies call on you, you should have forgotten to lay aside the dollar for them, just smile and tell us what day we may come back for it, and we will be very glad to do so. Now please don't forget us. We need your help, and we need your dollar, and as you saw by the statement printed Wednesday, we will put your dollar to good use in helping the young men of our city.

Why will you compel your wife to use that old worn-out machine, when you can get an up-to-date Singer on such easy terms that you will hardly miss the money? Ask me about it. I will place one with you on trial. Satisfaction guaranteed. T. O. Moore, City Salesman and Collector. 18-61
